Here are our three favorites from the latest pageviews: A response to the charge of teachers who are worried about the future employment prospects of education providers. When the education system moves from being an informative service to a profit-driven sector and the primary source of income for most educators becomes the student fee or class size, the pressure mounts to shift to a business-model centric organization. Students themselves, who have overworked syllabi and became desensitized to good teaching, become savvier consumers of education. Students develop an eye for the education dollar and the annual cycle of sorting out which is the best program and which is the worst. New models are already in place that rely less on regulated accountability and sanctions and more on rewarding the best and eliminating the worst. ALCATEL-LTE Provider of best value mobile telecommunication services worldwide since 1996Q: Change CSS of second paragraph with unique CSS class I have 2 paragraphs (1st paragraph is fixed) and I want to change the font of the second paragraph. The first paragraph has a unique class This is the first paragraph. This is the second paragraph. How can I change the font of the second paragraph? I tried with!important, but it didn't work Thank you. A: You will need to use a selector to target this only. The following selector will work: .a + p {font-size:1em;} Check out this fiddle for an example. A: You'll have to use a selector to select only the second paragraph; the following selector will do that: p + p {font-size:1em;} The + sign is the sibling selector. The trick here is that you have to select the first paragraph (you don't have to select the second one, as the second one is the sibling of the first one). Q: Is $(\omega^\xi)^\xi$ infinite? Given any ordinal ξ. Is the ordinal $(\omega^\xi)^\xi$ infinite? A: Since ω^ξ is a transfinite sequence, $(\omega^\xi)^\xi$ is a transfinite sequence of transfinite sequences. This is because, if t is the transfinite sequence of length ξ given by $t(i)=\omega^{\xi_i}$ for $\xi_0=\xi$ and
