Q: Excel - avoid messagebox when closing Excel with two distinct criteria I use an excel macro that simply sums up a datasheet per day, per week, etc... I would like to "kill" the macro and so I have a "Control+Break" and "End Task". But it seems a bit annoying to use two buttons for only one result. With this code, I simply send a message to the user (where "You must close excel before continuing the macro. press OK to continue or cancel to kill the macro") : Sub CloseWorkbook() MsgBox "You must close excel before continuing the macro. Press OK to continue or cancel to kill the macro.", vbCritical Exit Sub End Sub How can I avoid this messagebox? I tried with : Application.OnTime TimeValue("0:00:00"), "CloseWorkbook" But it does not works well. A: If you only ever need one macro to run, then it should not be a macro. I would suggest an empty function that calls a menu option instead (Add option from VBA: Insert|Macro and then choose "Function"). The application.onTime statement works by calling the function at the specified time. The reason it doesn't work for you is because the messagebox appears before the function is started, so it isn't going to wait until the function finishes before telling the user to exit. Reaction of 1 with $[RuCl2(COD)]2$ (COD = 1,5-cyclooctadiene) afforded $[RuCl2(C6H11)(NHAr)]2$ (3) (Ar = C6H5, Me, Bn) in good yield.
