Passper for zip crack download .One of my favourite authors is Gabriel Garcia Marquez, the author of the book, "One Hundred Years of Solitude". I was recently reminded of one of my favourite parts of the novel. It's a memory I never got to see or even fully understand. He's speaking about a man called "Simón" who has a magical ability to see things in trees. Well, a tree called "Teocaldo", which means "old son". I love this story and this chapter. I've also kept this quote in my journal as a reminder that maybe, just maybe, we all have magical abilities. Simón used to be amazed by the visions that Teocaldo, a tree on the forest outskirts, showed him. He would stand in front of the tree and tell his children, Isabel and Miguel, to stay put and not to move from where he was standing. He always came back after a while and saw the same images, which meant they were "inviolable", and they would disappear only after he had told them to come back the next morning. Two weeks earlier Simón had seen a vision that made him afraid. It was noon. He was walking in the forest with Teocaldo, who told him about the "sweet dreams" that it was going to bring. Simón was walking quietly and thinking about the previous night's dreams. He saw in the tree above his head a face full of spite and malice. A second face had laughing eyes, a mouth and two horns growing out of the top of the head. The face looked at him, but that is all he could see. The face vanished, and when he tried to approach the tree and look for it, he found that he could not. He was afraid 0cc13bf012
