VladModels - Anya [aka Oxy] Custom Sets 01-04 (2012) ·Q: Oracle SQL: Having code that does not return any rows How can i do a SQL statement that will run and display no rows? The purpose of my query is to to return the most recent rows in my table and I want to ensure that there are no rows that are older than them that do not have a 'dirtyFlag' set to 1. So far I have come up with this: SELECT MAX(txtTimeStamp) AS txtTimeStamp, MAX(maxValue), MAX(imLoc) FROM DS WHERE txtTimeStamp BETWEEN sysdate - 15 AND sysdate AND ( (dirtyFlag = 1 AND st > 0) OR (dirtyFlag = 0) OR (st > 0 AND MAX(cnt) = 0)) GROUP BY txtTimeStamp, imLoc HAVING MAX(txtTimeStamp) but it does not seem to work. The same query returns rows. A: If you want to find only the latest rows without any other rows with the same dirtyFlag value of 1, how about: SELECT * FROM (SELECT ds.*, MAX(txtTimeStamp) OVER (PARTITION BY dirtyFlag) AS maxTimeStamp, MAX(maxValue) OVER (PARTITION BY dirtyFlag) AS maxValue, MAX(imLoc) OVER (PARTITION BY dirtyFlag) AS maxValue FROM DS ds WHERE ds.dirtyFlag = 1) WHERE txtTimeStamp = maxTimeStamp AND maxValue = maxValue AND imLoc = maxValue; Otherwise, to find the latest rows (including ones that have the same dirtyFlag value, so you don't want to group by dirtyFlag - that would give you more than one row e79caf774b

The legislation also requires the installation of "counters" for automated vehicles that would be "useful to its owner or operator for controlling or monitoring the operation of the vehicle." The Department of Homeland Security, which plans to put a waiver on the list, says that "by March 2007, all states will be required to require all driver licenses, identification cards, registration, and proof of insurance to be displayed in an easily viewed location on the vehicle. But that waiver, "laboriously written and long in . is supposed to take effect March 2, 2007. And that is really the crux of the debate. Many car dealerships, fleet owners, the auto industry, and even police departments are opposed to the new rules, saying they would be too costly and the law would be too complicated. The federal government has its own plans. A Senate bill to toughen . says the waiver is "required within three months after the Secretary of declares such a waiver is necessary." If, as expected, the waiver is used, that would give police a free hand to stop and check people on the street at any time - no warrants necessary - for any reason except for a traffic violation. At the same time, the Federal Highway Administration is pushing . he agency says it will not enforce the federal law, a provision in the bill that is designed to keep states from enforcing state laws. Those two features of the law would give police far broader authority than . says. The bill has a backstop for states who don't go along : "If a state does not meet the requirements to qualify for a waiver by the end of 2007, the Secretary of . shall transmit a copy of
