I tried manually updating the app service and webjob deployment only said that the RAM constraint was met. Is there another way to specify the minimum amount of RAM the webjob can use? A: You can't specify the RAM that the web job is configured to use. You can do the following to make the web job available for scaling but not always use it: If the webjob can run on a free instance, it will always be picked for a scaling up step. If the webjob can not run on a free
