Real Madrid President Florentino Perez would like to meet French figurehead Gerard Houllier to discuss his future at the club, according to the Gazzetta dello Sport. Perez was said to have turned down Louis van Gaal's approach to coach United this summer, fearing it would rule him out of the race to sign Neymar. One stumbling block is that he will be in Qatar that summer when the transfer window reopens. The French would have had to fly to Madrid for talks, something Perez, keen on a global position, is said to be unwilling to do. "Florentino Perez is open-minded and willing to listen," Italian media outlet Tuttosport wrote. "We'll see what becomes of Van Gaal and the future of Real Madrid, but he could do with a strong character with whom to exchange ideas." Van Gaal's comments to the media at Old Trafford in late June that he would have been interested in the job stirred further rumours of his departure. A popular figure at the club, he is expected to be given a lucrative new contract by former boss Jose Mourinho to the tune of five or six years. The Portuguese once described Hul in his famous book Life, Football and Learning about a "spendthrift". Perez would not be the first European to reject the job at United following defeat to Liverpool in the 2013 Champions League final. Another former coach, Rene Herrmann, was having a drink with three Real Madrid players at the hotel they were staying at when Mourinho's words landed. "It's a complicated issue," Herrmann told Le Parisien. "I have been close to them over the years and I know that they still respect me. They told me e79caf774b
