Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image forming apparatus for duplicating an image on a sheet of paper and, more particularly, to an image forming apparatus in which images recorded on a paper cassette are transferred from the paper cassette to an image transfer belt so as to be duplicated by a fuser. 2. Description of the Related Art Conventionally, in some image forming apparatuses, a paper cassette, on which various kinds of papers such as plain paper, thick paper, and thin paper are stored, is arranged in an apparatus main body of the image forming apparatus. When the paper cassette is taken out of the apparatus main body of the image forming apparatus, a paper jam or other problems may occur depending on the paper. In this regard, a conventional image forming apparatus is provided with a roll (a paper take-out roller) for taking the paper out of the paper cassette, and the paper is discharged to an image forming unit by the rotation of the take-out roller after the paper is taken out of the paper cassette (see Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open Nos. 2003-186601 and 2004-30295). However, the paper is fed to the take-out roller by friction between the paper and the take-out c6a93da74d
