I had been using the Spotify app for quite a while now, and it works really well on Windows 11. However, we can now customize the free version with the right tweak, so you can get more features like scrobbling, Wi-Fi sharing, etc. I would recommend you try out Spotify for a limited time ($9.99 per month) as a free app, and see if it works with your PC. You can download it from the Microsoft Store as well. I like the PowerPoint Presentation app on Windows 11. It lets you create, edit, and view Microsoft PowerPoint presentations on your Windows 11 computer. You can edit documents from Office 365, Gmail, OneDrive, and more. You can set it as the default PowerPoint app for web browsers, transfer your presentations to other Windows 11 devices or even iOS. You can even open them in the PowerPoint online app or desktop version of PowerPoint as well. If you use a Windows tablet, you can also use the touch controls to add slides and notes. However, the Windows 11 app is a bit messy, and needs a lot of work to get the hang of. In that case, the free trial is worth checking out, thanks to its simple interface and decent editing tools. Microsoft announced its Skype for Business app on Windows 11 earlier, and it is now available to download from the Microsoft Store. You can use the app for meetings and calls, video conferencing, group chat, etc. in one place, and it comes with a unified inbox that has been optimized for Windows 11 as well. It is a neat Windows 11 app, but it fails to integrate any important features like enterprise users can do. So definitely try out Skype for Business if you are looking for a Skype alternative for business calls. 5ec8ef588b
