If you want to try out the latest iteration of Photoshop and you are not a current member of the Adobe Creative Cloud, you have two options. You can download the latest version of Photoshop separately on the Adobe site for $800. Or you can instantly subscribe to the fully membership-based Creative Cloud and get all the great updates forever straight from your desktop, including Photoshop and Lightroom. The Lightroom team describes their program as “a powerful, but easy-to-use, all-in-one image, video and web gallery, processing, and management application”. One of the key features the following is of particular interest for me: “All of your photos are organized in your Library and each one can have its own keywords, ratings, comments, tags, geolocation data, and more.” This feature also doubles for “digital negative scanning through Photoshop”. So Lightroom effectively becomes a full-fledged negative working digital darkroom, which cannot be said of Adobe RAW Managing Editor or most other software solutions. Adobe Storage and Lightroom even provide the editor with a “Generate Lightbox” feature to send images output to a browser. This can be slightly overwhelming because there are a few different Creative Cloud plans to pick from according to what your area of interest is. To make things simple there are 3 different options that you will have to choose from that include Photoshop. First the ‘Photography’ plan which is $9.99/mo and grants you access to Adobe Photoshop and also Adobe Lightroom which is a program that allows for detailed photo editing. This is a great value considering the second option is $20.99/mo for use of only Photoshop. The third and final option which I think is the best option is the Student and Teacher plan that is $19.99/mo and includes access to every Adobe program available. This is an amazing value because you get access to everything Adobe has to offer. From there you can learn and try new programs that Adobe offers to see what your favorite is.
