We were excited to learn this morning that Ken will be interviewing Dylan's Crew Product Managers for Episode 19 of Pursuit Podcast. Ken brought on Taylor, who is the Product Manager of Rigs in Seattle, to talk with him about Dylan's Crew and their hard work, dedication, and of course, their beer. After the interview, Taylor mentioned that every ship, crew member, and cargo they had left over from the journey would be made available for public purchase. For those that don't know, this is an extremely rare occurrence and extremely fun for all who are part of the Vasa community (and beyond!). We wanted to share a bit of the backstory behind these new items: In the early 1900s, the Swedish navy launched a large wooden warship at the public-works docks in Gothenburg, a large wooden ship known as Vasa. It had a library, and the ship's librarian, Karl Gustav Rodhe, would allow sightseers to gaze into the ship's spy-hole and imagine themselves there. In July 1944, a fire broke out in the ship's dry dock. A crew of volunteers and ship's officers battled the fire for seven days, but the fire persisted, and only with the help of the crew and an army of shipworkers could the ship be pumped dry to extinguish the blaze. On August 5th, the ship was refloated, and the ship was towed to Gothenburg to be stored until after World War II. After the war ended, the next decision about the ship's future was whether to repair
